

Small fire department crew extinguishes dramatic vehicle fire in Pohnpei

By Bill Jaynes
 The Kaselehlie Press

August 27, 2018

Pohnpei—During the evening commute on Monday, August 27, a sedan dramatically caught fire on the road near The Rusty Anchor. No one was injured in the blaze that ultimately burned everything on the vehicle that could burn, leaving it sitting on the road side on just its wheels, the tires having burned completely away.

Captain Patrick Carl of Pohnpei’s Department of Public Safety said that firefighters are currently still in training. The plan for the manning of a fire department 24 hours a day will be implemented by October but for now, the trained firefighters go home at the end of their training day at 5:00. When the report of the fire came in, all of the officers had already left for the day. Carl said that he was also stuck in the traffic caused by the burning vehicle when the call came in. He said that he drove back to Kolonia to get the truck. He was able to find two officers who had not left yet and the three responded immediately to the vehicle which was in full conflagration when they arrived at dusk.

The three responders were able to put the blaze out, though it was difficult to extinguish.

Carl said that the new fire department has responded to an average of one car fire per month for several months now. Last month they responded to a car fire at T-3. Two minors were charged with arson in that fire.

He said that he didn’t yet know the cause of this afternoon’s fire but that quite often the cause is a fault in electrical wiring of aftermarket products like stereo systems and business band radios. He encourages drivers who are installing products like these in their vehicles to be certain that they utilize a knowledgeable person to do the installation.

Pohnpei legislators mulling mandatory vehicle insurance bill

By Bill Jaynes
The Kaselehlie Press

August 30, 2018

Pohnpei—The Pohnpei State Legislature is considering a bill (LB 355-18) to require all vehicles to have a minimum of $15,000 of Property Damage Liability Insurance and the same amount for Third Party Bodily Injury Liability before a vehicle can be registered.

The Justice and Governmental Operations Committee has already conducted at least one public hearing on the bill but a committee report has not yet been introduced.

“The Legislature finds that motor vehicle insurance is necessary to assure that injured Pohnpeians receive adequate compensation when they are injured in their person or their property. It is the intent of this legislation to require mandatory motor vehicle liability insurance in order to guarantee adequate protection for victims of car accidents who are injured in Pohnpei or who are injured while riding in motor vehicles which are operated in Pohnpei,” the bill says.

If the bill passes it would go into effect on January 1, 2019.

Certification of insurance would be required before a vehicle could be registered. The insurance must be in effect for the entire year of registration unless the vehicle is sold or otherwise transferred, at which time the new owner would be required to have insurance before it can be re-registered.

If the vehicle owner lies about having insurance, the Director of the Department of Public Safety would have the power to revoke a registration. If that action is taken, that vehicle would not be eligible for registration for six months. If a person’s registration certificate is revoked, the registration certificate cannot be transferred in any other name unless the Director is satisfied that the transfer was made in good faith and not for purposes of defeating the purposes of the law. The Department of Public Safety would be authorized to immobilize any vehicle that has a revoked registration certificate.

The bill, in its current form would require insurers to notify the Department of Public Safety of any insurance cancellations or lapses. The Director would then inform the insured that insurance for the vehicle has been cancelled. The insured would then have 30 days to procure a new policy or reinstate a policy. If that is not done within the imposed time limit, the owner of the vehicle would be fined $500 and the vehicle will be subject to impoundment.

Traffic snarled in Pohnpei as hundreds gather at Pohnpei Public Market on “deadline day” for legal actions on alleged squatters

By Bill Jaynes
The Kaselehlie Press

August 31, 2018

Pohnpei—Two weeks ago, Pohnpei’s Attorney General Dana Smith issued notices for alleged trespassers on Pohnpei state lands at the Public Market site in Kolonia and on property located near PICS High School to vacate or face legal action.

That legal action didn’t come in the way that some expected it would come. The expectation of a forced removal of so called “squatters” at the Public Market had never been planned. Just the same, protestors gathered en masse, ready for a confrontation that was never intended and was never planned.

Quietly, the Attorney General filed civil actions at the Pohnpei Supreme Court against more than 200 alleged squatters at both sites as he had promised to do in his public notice and direct service methods. Those notices never said that the alleged trespassers would be physically removed on August 31, only that those who are occupying the properties in question should be out on or before August 31.

One of the civil actions alleges that a parking structure may have been built within the boundaries of a road easement and also on two lots of the public market land. Another has to do with people who have established living quarters on that land. One last civil action is against the actions of people who have allegedly occupied buildings that were intended for ex-patriate employees of the Pohnpei State Government. The Government has not been able to use the properties for their intended purpose because they were occupied by other people who allegedly had no permission to be there. Meanwhile, the government has been paying rent for those employees while the people who occupied the housing, allegedly without permission have been paying nothing for the use of the properties.

The civil actions filed this morning have asked the court to issue an order directing all of the many defendants, their family members and agents to vacate the parcels of land in question and to remove their personal possessions and property from the premises. Pending litigation of the case, the civil actions ask the court to issue a Writ of Possession directing the Director of the Department of Public Safety or a responsible official of the State to remove Defendants from possession of the properties. They ask the court to enjoin (stop) the defendants from further committing acts that keep the State from entering the named parcels of land and renovating the structures for use by the Pohnpei government. They also ask for the court to order the defendants to pay reasonable rent as damages for the time they wrongfully used the land and also to pay for “special injury” to the parcels of land and improvements found there.

The civil actions were only filed this morning and the court will require that defendants be given opportunity to respond before anything is done. The decision on what to do next will be in the hands of the Pohnpei Supreme Court.

Albert Osbert of Madolenihmw and Cornelio Cantero of Kolonia were selected as Luen Thai Scholarship recipients. They will leave for China on Monday, September 3 and will study International Economy and World Trade at Quanzhou Normal University for five years. All expenses will be paid by Luen Thai.

UNICEF and SPC partner to improve data for children, women and people with disabilities across the Pacific islands

28 August 2018

SUVA, Fiji – Today, the United Nations Children’s Fund (UNICEF) and The Pacific Community (SPC) announced a new partnership to support the strengthening of data collection and data analysis to improve the lives of the most vulnerable children, women and people with disabilities across the Pacific islands and territories.

The collection and dissemination of reliable data of children and women worldwide is vital to identify and plan for their needs and to inform policies.

UNICEF Representative, Sheldon Yett, said, “Statistically sound and internationally comparable data is essential for the targeting of resources to reach the Sustainable Development Goals and meet the needs of the most vulnerable. We welcome this partnership with SPC, which will work towards ensuring that global best practices are in place for data collection and analysis for women and children in the Pacific.”

Through the collection of quality data, decision-makers are able to make positive change by identifying needs and monitoring progress in their countries. Quality data is essential for measuring a country’s progress against the Sustainable Development Goals and currently in the Pacific islands, there is a lack of data to accurately measure this progress.

standards of data collection for children, women and people with disabilities

- Analyse and utilize new and existing data to report and monitor the situation of children, women and people with disabilities; and
- Disseminate statistics, engage stakeholders and advocate for the collection and use of statistics in policy formulation.

This new initiative is aligned to the joint UN Data, Monitoring and Evaluation Group, established in Fiji and Samoa, which coordinates efforts to improve data collection, analysis and utilization for evidence based decision making and policy development in the Pacific islands and territories.

The 2017 World Bank Statistical Capacity Indicator reports that the Pacific Island countries rank significantly below the Asia-Pacific regional average and that the Pacific needs to improve specifically on health and poverty surveys as well as vital registration systems. Insufficient or no data risks leaving children behind on critical issues such as improving health, sanitation, education, and protecting children from violence, abuse and exploitation.

Regional initiatives, such as the Ten Year Pacific Statistics Strategy (TYPSS), seek to address some data collection challenges, however, despite these efforts, greater attention is needed to produce regular statistics on marginalised populations, including children, women and people with disabilities.

Highlighting the potential impact of this agreement for the Pacific, SPC’s Deputy Director General, Audrey Aumua, said, “Good policy is formed on a foundation of good data. Through this agreement, SPC and UNICEF will be able to better support the work of Pacific leaders to improve the lives of women and children across our region.”

The new UNICEF-SPC partnership aims to support Pacific island governments to:

- Improve the quality and

Former "Saki Stores" employee sparks Immigration and Labor investigation

By Bill Jaynes
The Kaselehlie Press

August 31, 2018

Chuuk— In an email circulated to a large group of FSM and international government officials and others, Vikas Bijlwan, a former Padma Enterprises-Saki Store employee from India made several serious allegations of wrong doing associated with the store. He made the claims from India after he was allegedly summarily dismissed from employment with the store in Chuuk on the evening of August 4 and handed a plane ticket for a flight that departed for India just over five hours later.

FSM Secretary for the Department of Justice Joses Gallen has dispatched investigators from Immigration and Labor to investigate the claims. In an online interview on Wednesday of this week, Gallen wrote that their investigation into various labor claims, including allegations that owners of the Saki store confiscated passports of foreign workers on arrival, a claim that if true might have meant that employees were held against their will, should soon be completed.

He wrote that Immigration and Labor were already assigned to investigate the claims when National Police officers in Chuuk began their own investigation so he instructed them to "hold on and not interfere with the immigration investigation."

"Yes, we will pursue to criminal investigation if warranted from the immigration report," he wrote.

Bijlwan claimed that employees feared reporting any of the accusations he made in his email because they had been told that the foreign owner allegedly claimed to have influence through bribery and other means with government officials including FSM Attorney General Joses Gallen.

Gallen said that he had no idea what would lead Bijlwan to make that claim. Gallen said that he is not a part owner of any Saki Stores and that he solely owns JG Stores with no partner. He said that he has no association with the owner of Saki Stores.

One result of the investigation so far is that employees from India whose work permits had expired were repatriated to India but at press time, the Immigration and Labor investigation had not been completed.

Bijlwan's widely circulated email message which included copies of his contract, his expired entry permit, and his passport also included a link to a "warning" he had written on "blogspot" to other Indian workers considering employment with the store. That warning included several allegations not under the purview of Immigration and Labor. We could not confirm whether those allegations are being investigated.

Bank FSM is the only non-US bank in the world (incorporated and registered outside the US and its Territories) whose deposits are insured by Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). Bank of FSM has a branch in each of the four Federated States of Micronesia (FSM) States (Kosrae, Pohnpei, Chuuk and Yap) a limited service office in Honolulu, Hawaii and a Loan Production Office in Saipan (Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands). The Corporate Office is located in Pohnpei.

This is an exciting opportunity to join a small proven and successful banking operation in a remote part of the Pacific. Our banking operations are premised very much around US style banking suite of products and services, but banking model is unique to this part of the world. Bank has developed its own brand of lending, packages, banking service and interaction that has driven it to good success in recent years. Bank is now looking for a team player, to take the work of recent years and build it to new levels

Bank ownership is widely spread amongst 5000 odd shareholders but majority ownership rests with FSM National and State Governments, and/or quasi-government entities within Micronesia.

...Women's Conference

where they heard presentations from authorities on a huge variety of important issues that affect everyone in the FSM but focused on the particular impacts on women.

Organizers invited and encouraged men to also attend and many did. The vast majority of presentations were made by women but there were also presentations by men.

The stated objectives of the conference were to provide a platform where women from the four states can come together and engage in discussions on issues affecting them, to have a forum where FSM national and state level stakeholders can harmonize their understanding and status of women's issues in relation to different policy frameworks at the national, regional, and international level and to unify the collective efforts of the country's response to resolving women's issues. It was also to engage the participants of the forum with resource people in different fields to uplift the level of understanding and support for women and girls in the FSM.

The signing of the resolutions and outcome documents won't come until after we have gone to press. Those will be much more specific than the stated hope of outcomes on the printed program for the conference.

Those hoped for outcomes are an increased awareness and understanding of issues affecting women in the FSM; a better understanding of national and state level policy frameworks that are guiding the governments' work to advance the status of women of the FSM; priorities of the states identified to the progress of women's status and linking them to available technical assistance and funding support; improved coordination of the FSM national and states' government actions to respond to regional and international commitments to advance the equitable development for women in FSM.

On day one the presentations began with lessons for the FSM on women, democracy and accountability in Pacific Islands, and continued through good governance, climate change issues and its impact on women, the role of women in sustaining a healthy nation and onto the important topic of women's participation in politics in the FSM, including the recently introduced temporary special measure to add four new seats specifically for women in the FSM Congress. The day ended with a reception hosted by the Australian Embassy where several more presentations were given.

On day two the presentations began with discussions on women's economic empowerment and the morning concluded with a presentation on FSM Social Security. After a break the topics were Micronesian women and sustainable futures for FSM, and regional projects targeting women to ensure gender inclusiveness. Dinner was hosted by Pohnpei State Legislature.

On Wednesday presentations were made for recommendations from the states followed by a climate adaptation survey. After lunch presentations centered on gender violence and family safety issues and mitigating services designed to help. The United States Embassy hosted a dinner reception that included presentations on qualifications of a mother to be a leader by PhD candidate Myjolyne Kim and a presentation on Human Trafficking eradication enforcement efforts. Before dinner the video on FSM Female Pioneers was screened. Organizers hope to be able to find funding to flesh out the content of the video to include interviews and more listed FSM female pioneers. The video was produced by Micronesia Productions as a volunteer effort.

On Thursday, before afternoon breakout sessions, presentations centered on women's health issues. Dinner was hosted by Kolonia Mayor Jose San Nicolas at Flamingo.

A closing reception will be hosted by FSM Congress Speaker Wesley Simina and Senator Ferny Perman. It will include performances from each of the states.

Pohnpei firefighters stage a fiery training exhibition at Peilapalap

By Bill Jaynes
The Kaselehlie Press

August 22, 2018

Pohnpei—As part of their ongoing training, Pohnpei's Fire Fighters staged an emergency exercise in the courtyard of the government building in Peilapalap.

Trainers had established a scenario for the training. The scenario they developed was that someone was trapped in a burning home. The firefighters were first to control the raging fire and then seek to find and rescue the trapped person. Meanwhile, the scenario said that one of the fire fighters was to be overcome by smoke inhalation and would require rescue and emergency medical response as well.

The simulated house fire was set in several barrels containing a mixture of gasoline, diesel fuel and car tires. After the fires were lit, firefighters rushed in as a team to put out the stubborn flames. The water sources for the powerful hoses were two fire department vehicles and the hoses ran through the building.

Captain Patrick Carl said that he had not expected the training blazes to be quite as blackly smoky as it was. Several spectators had no choice but to leave before the exercise was over due to the fumes.

Once the flames were under control, emergency medical responders rushed in to treat and evacuate the mock victims who were each loaded onto ambulances at which point the exercise ended.

Later in the day the fire fighters also participated in a vehicle extrication exercise where a mock victim was trapped inside a wrecked car.

Carl says that the current training will continue through September and that once the training is complete, his Division of the Department of Public Safety will put the plan into place that would set up a 24 hour emergency response team in early October.

*Tyana Musrasrik
PC: TRiO Program*

College alumna Tyana Musrasrik graduated from COM-FSM in Spring of 2016 with a degree in Micronesian Studies. As a student with greater dreams she continued her education at Eastern Oregon University (EOU). She will be graduating this year as part of the class of 2018 with a degree in Anthropology and Sociology.

Tyana was recently featured in a newspaper "The Observer" where she shared that, "I chose this major mainly because I was interested and curious in wanting to know why society is the way that it is" She added; "I have a passion for social justice. I want to help give a voice to the underrepresented whether it be the minorities, low-income, disabled, or the LGBTQ community."

Tyana will have that opportunity in her new role as Eastern's Privileged Campus Advocate. According to "The Observer" this new program, which is a collaboration between EOU and Shelter from the Storm, will open up as an advocacy office on campus in hopes of removing barriers for students and staff to seek help and support for domestic violence, sexual assault, and stalking.

In the interview, Tyana mentioned that this opportunity came about during her practicum/internship. As a student at EOU, Tyana maintained a 3.7 GPA, served as the Student Coordinator for the Student Council for Multicultural Affairs, was a Diversity Mentor at the Multicultural Center, and was a teaching assistant for a sociology course.

She was also a TRiO student and a member of the Navigator's Club, Latino Impact Club, and the Mission for Environmental and Social Awareness Club. She will also be inducted into the National Society for Leadership and Success before graduation. During her time at COM-FSM, Tyana was a cheerful and smart student, and was on the President's list when she graduated. Tyana was an active member of the Peer Coaches where she is described as being friendly and always wears that contagious smile.

The College congratulates Tyana on her success, and wishes her the best in her promising career.

Federated States of Micronesia forges a way forward to health security in the Pacific

World Health Organization – Western Pacific Region

20 August 2018 – The Federated States of Micronesia has become the first Pacific island country to complete a Joint External Evaluation (JEE).

JEEs are voluntary, and involve a team of local and international experts working together to evaluate the country’s preparedness for outbreaks and health emergencies. This includes a set of core capacities required under the International Health Regulations (2005) (IHR) – a legally-binding international instrument signed by 196 countries across the globe, including the Federated States of Micronesia. The JEE process provides countries with recommendations on how to strengthen their national systems and address identified gaps, as part of an ongoing process of learning and improvement.

“This has been a week of thoughtful discussion, valuable insights and new ideas — but also a recognition of what has already been working well,” said Magdalena Walter, Secretary of Health and Social Affairs. “We know that by working together we can better protect our people from outbreaks and emergencies.”

Dr Li Ailan, Regional Emergency Director for the World Health Organization (WHO) in the Western Pacific, praised the country for being at the forefront of health security in the Pacific: “The Federated States of Micronesia should be proud of the fact that this is the first JEE in a Pacific island country.”

The JEE in the Federated States of Micronesia was conducted from 13-17 August and included experts in a range of disciplines including surveillance, antimicrobial resistance, risk communication, emergency management and biosecurity. WHO supported the country to prepare for the evaluation and ensure it was appropriately tailored to the Pacific island context, where geographically dispersed populations make delivering health services and managing emergency response operations logistically challenging and expensive.

“We are happy to have supported the Federated States of Micronesia through the JEE process,” said Dr Eunyoung Ko, WHO Country Liaison Officer. “Now we’ll continue to work together to implement the recommendations and catalyze further progress towards health security.”

In the Pacific, WHO works closely with national authorities and regional partners to collectively prioritize, implement and fund sustainable national and regional health security capacities, guided by the Asia Pacific Strategy for Emerging Diseases and Public Health Emergencies (APSED III) and the Pacific Health Security Coordination Plan 2017-2022 (PaHSeC). These strategic frameworks support countries and partners to take collective action to accelerate implementation of the IHR at national and regional levels.

Other countries in the Western Pacific Region that have conducted a JEE include Australia, Cambodia, Japan, the Lao People’s Democratic Republic, Mongolia, the Republic of Korea, Singapore and Viet Nam.

Air drops and safety goals added to updated aviation risk standard

Global flight safety standards for contracted aircraft operators have been updated to include air drop threats, controls and defences in a collaboration involving the Flight Safety Foundation, air operators, humanitarian organisations and facilitated by the World Food Programme (WFP). Air drops are occasionally used by humanitarian organisations like WFP to deliver food and other basic supplies to remote areas.

Version seven of the new Basic Aviation Risk Standard (BARS) Program also includes the addition of safety goals at the top of each control and defence, providing industry with the ability to establish measures to rate the organisation's safety performance against each goal.

The BARS Program was created by the Flight Safety Foundation (FSF) in collaboration with some of the world's largest resource and mining companies to provide a more efficient means of monitoring, assessing and analysing risks associated with contracted aviation operators. FSF BARS Program managing director David Anderson said the inclusion of air drop risks and controls in the latest version of the Program responded to the continued rise in global humanitarian activity and the unique challenges involved in these operations.

"Air drop activity has its own unique set of risks and controls and is very different to other aviation operations, which is why we've dedicated an entire appendix in this latest version of the BARS Program to these activities," he said.

"The air drop section was developed in collaboration with humanitarian organisations and relevant operators and facilitated by the World Food Program, – the result is a common safety standard for aircraft operators to address the challenges of these complex operations."

Mr Anderson said the other significant update in the latest version of the BARS Program was the inclusion of safety goals – a result of industry feedback from resources, mining, construction and insurance organisations that contract aircraft and helicopter operators.

"No other standard has ever outlined 'why' a control is in place – the addition of safety goals to each control and defence in the standard is a significant step forward for our industry," he said.

"This provides aircraft operators with the guidance to establish metrics to assess how the organisation is meeting its safety goals, improving visibility and performance."

Mr Anderson said before the BARS Program existed there were no clear benchmarks for companies to assess the safety of their own, or outsourced, air operations. This created multiple audit levels that were carried out with no information-sharing or comparability between companies.

"Over the past seven years, the BARS Program has done more than 550 audits in 33 different countries for about 170 different aircraft operators," Mr Anderson said.
